THREE MEALS A DAY

By SALLY SAVER.

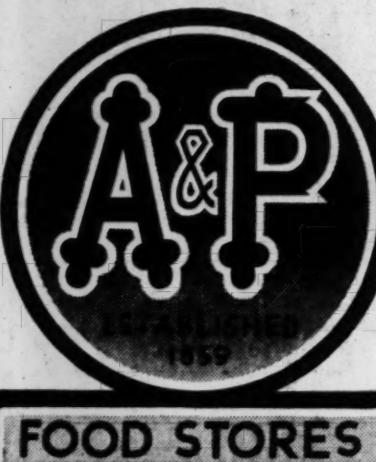

Questions about recipes or menus will be answered if you will write or phone the editor of this column at Walnut 6565.

With a weather eye focused on hot days ahead, and the need of getting out of the kitchen as much as possible for comfort's sake, Sally has been investigating the advantages of electric cookery.

The proud possessor of electric appliances, an electric stove and refrigerator, and an electric dishwasher really can look forward to cool comfort this summer while preparing daily meals.

When Sally says, "I want to play bridge this afternoon," but duty says the family deserves a substantial hot dinner this evening, and there is no maid in the kitchen to prepare it, the thing to do is to try one of the new refrigerators.

Most folks like soup—men folks especially. Let's make it the subject of the contest this week. What do you say?

Send in the recipe for the soup you like best of all and if it is published in this column, Sally Saver will send you $1 for it.

Mail the recipe to Sally Saver, care of The Atlanta Constitution, not later than Tuesday of next week. Watch this column next week for your recipe may be in it.

Cooking at the Table.

One must be deaf at this business of fixing things before everyone's eyes. No time to stop and hunt up recipes. Everything that will be needed should be on a tray and all details thought out carefully to avoid confusion.

Use informal linen and china for this kind of a meal—the gayest things you've got—and make the service of the table-cooked menu as simple as possible. If you are a cook who can chat and be calm while she's cooking, the to moisten; 1-4 teaspoon thyme; 1-2 teaspoon poultry dressing; 1-4 cup minced onion; 1-2 cup celery, cut fine; chicken liver, rub to a paste; 1-4 cup melted butter, 1 egg.

Moisten bread slightly. Add other ingredients. Add beaten eggs and butter last. Stuff chicken. If more than needed, turn into shallow pan and bake 350 degrees 30 minutes.

Then remove rhubarb and set it aside to cool. Cook the rest of the meal approximately 30-45 minutes longer. Loss to City of $12,000
Year Alleged in Petition.

A petition asking the city to take immediate action in collecting for all water furnished to the Southeastern Fair Association will be presented to city council at its meeting Monday by C. A. Screws. Since 1924 the city has been furnishing free of charge all water needed by the association to carry on its business, the petition sets out. It is alleged that the city loses approximately $12,000 per year as a result of this service.

Screws insists the city should collect not only for all water furnished the association in the future, but asks that council take immediate action to collect for all water heretofore furnished to the Southeastern Fair Association within the period allowed by law to collect same.

Zode Smith, superintendent and general manager of the city waterworks department, said the parks department entered into a contract with the association in 1924 in which the city agreed to furnish free water, fire protection, police protection and other services for a period of 25 years.

The petition, drawn by F. Lee Evans and Alton T. Milam, attorneys, will probably be referred to the legal department, C. L. Chosewood, chairman of the waterworks committee, said.

Leaders of the tire business estimate that 50,000,000 tires will be due for replacement this year, and that sale of this number would be about $500,000,000 worth of business.

TIRE SAFETY WEEK BEGINS TOMORROWIndustry Hopes To Stimulate Business in Industry Employing 125,000.

National Tire Safety Week begins tomorrow with Atlanta representatives of the nation's tire industry co-operating in the drive to promote highway safety and to stimulate business in an industry affecting 125,000 employees all over the country.

Employers in the tire industry last year received wages and salaries of $100,000,000, and sponsors of National Tire Safety Week are hopeful the campaign will result in maintaining employment rolls at a high level.

While the campaign will stress safety by the scrapping of smooth-worn tires, leaders of the drive point out it will have a great importance in increasing consumption of raw materials and stepping up production in such a way that it will favorably affect the national picture.

Another strong effect is seen from the raw material angle, it was said, as the industry consumed last year 301,000,000 pounds of cotton, or 5 per cent more than the nation's production. Approximately double that amount of crude rubber was used, besides products such as paper, wire, coal, oil, chemicals and lumber.

Seven attorneys recommended to the Association of Stock Exchange Firms in 1934 that customers' funds be placed in a separate bank account "not available for use by the firm in its general business," exhibits showed.

But 40 out of 60 firms studied "took no steps to set up any type of special reserve out of which to meet demands for payment of the (customers') credit balances, although several of these at one time or another had a special method which they have since abandoned," it was reported.

Modern Practices in Agriculture Demonstrated to Georgia Farmers

Even Thousand Attend Annual Livestock and Equipment Day Program in Athens; Speakers Stress State's Major Agricultural Gains.

Dr. Jarnagin said the state of the College of Agriculture, Dr. Caldwell said, "Their problems are its problems, and ways by which their incomes may be increased and conditions of rural life improved are the chief objects of its studies and teaching."

"It belongs to the citizens of Georgia and is dedicated to their service. It is the hope of all of us here at the university that you will find your visit to the university today profitable and enjoyable."

Sanford Also Speaks.

Chancellor Sanford also added his word of welcome, and commended the thousands of farmers who have shown sufficient interest in their business of farming to come here today for this inspection of crops and livestock and for the demonstrations of latest farm machinery."

The all-day program was featured by a motorcade tour of the university campus and the college farm during the morning, an old-fashioned barbecue shortly afterward, and a widely varied demonstration of farm equipment and machinery of purebred livestock in the afternoon.

Between $60,000 and $70,000 worth of farming equipment was on exhibition during the day.

As the visitors inspected the exhibit of Georgia-raised mules, Jarnagin explained that the college is now co-operating with the United States Department of Agriculture in a workstock breeding project. He said results so far have been "very satisfactory."

VOCATIONAL WORK IN CITY IS PRAISED

Twenty-Fifth Anniversary of Education Work Here Celebrated.

Twenty-fifth anniversary of the establishment of vocational education in Atlanta's public schools was celebrated at a dinner last night sponsored by the Atlanta chapter of the National Vocational Guidance Association.

More than 100 business, civic and educational leaders heard the city praised as a national leader in the field as a result of the outstanding accomplishments here during the last quarter century.

Dr. Willis A. Sutton, Atlanta school superintendent, presided, and speakers included Professor Thos. H. Quigley, of Georgia Tech, president of the national association; Dr. M. D. Collins, state school superintendent; E. S. Cook, president of the city board of education, and others.

K. N. Coggan was elected president of the Atlanta chapter to succeed H. Reid Hunter, and Miss Hannah Wilson was named secretary-treasurer at a short business session.

TRACTOR DRIVER NOW KNOWS REAL SQUEEZE

Verne Peterson, tractor driver for a Sturkis (Sask.) lumber company, now knows what a real squeeze is.

Hauling a long train of lumber-loaded sleighs, the tractor upset on a steep hill. The lumber was spilled all over, some of it squeezing Peterson into the cab of the tractor so tightly that some of his clothing had to be ripped off before he could be extricated.

Peterson suffered no injuries.

CHARLESTON'S MAYOR IN GOVERNOR'S RACE

CHARLESTON, S. C., May 12.—(UP)—Mayor Burnett R. Maybank, 39, of Charleston, today formally announced his candidacy for Governor of South Carolina.

Maybank, who has been mayor for six years, said: "I intend to wage a vigorous campaign based on my knowledge of the needs of our state."

Globe-Trotting Record Pauses Here on Trip

A globe-trotting phonograph record carrying messages from spokesmen in scores of countries paused here briefly yesterday before continuing its "round-the-world" trip by air.

The tour was planned in observance of National Air Mail Week and started in Chicago last month. Since then the record has visited Honolulu, London, Rio de Janeiro, Havana and many other cities.

From here it was shipped to Washington, where Postmaster General Farley will give it an "audition," after which it will continue its journey back to Chicago.

Officer's said they were considering sending him back on the same ship when she sails for New York Saturday. He slipped aboard her Monday, only a few hours after he had returned on the liner Queen Mary from an Atlantic crossing as a stowaway.

Mother's Comment.

His mother said she has "hardly turned my back for a minute, and he was gone."

"I think the reason he ran away again," she said, "was that I didn't kiss him when I met him at the dock. Well, it was his business to kiss me."

A steward found him in the music room when the City of Chattanooga was two hours out.

ELECTROLUX CHIEF, OVERDUE, MAKES PORT

NEW YORK, May 12.—(AP)—Axel Wenner-Gren, board chairman of the Servel Corporation and president of Electrolux, Inc., of Sweden, has arrived safely in the Canal Zone from a world cruise on his steam yacht, the Southern Cross, associates said today.

Wenner-Gren's friends on the west coast had expressed alarm about his safety. They said the yacht had been unreported for a long time.

LONDON SURPRISED AS HENLEIN ARRIVES

Sudeten German Leader Figures in Weird Diplomatic Round-Robin.

LONDON, May 12.—(AP)—Konrad Henlein came to London on a surprise visit tonight, strengthening Britain's hopes of settling Czechoslovakia's dangerous German minority problem to the satisfaction of Adolf Hitler.

Reliable sources said the militant Nazi leader would remain over the week end to discuss with "friends" the question of his 3,500,000 Sudeten German followers in Czechoslovakia.

Traveling alone, the central figure in middle Europe's growing tension arrived by airplane on his undisclosed mission. The short, stocky Nazi chieftain declined to discuss his visit.

He was driven away by an unidentified man and woman who met him at Croyfield air field. No one gave any inkling as to who were the "friends" he would see.

Czechoslovak officials said they were unaware of Henlein's trip. British officials likewise professed ignorance. But Henlein may hold the key to the solution of the dangerous problem affecting all the major powers of Europe.

Britain and France already are working hard to solve the minority riddle and are exerting pressure on Czechoslovakia to "go the limit" in meeting Henlein's demands and in getting Germany to convince Henlein, to modify those demands.

Germany, on the other hand, has an excellent lever in Henlein for exerting pressure on the war-created republic.

Britain fears Czechoslovakia cannot go on forever with such basic friction within her borders and such heavy pressure from without.

BOY STOWAWAY, 13, HELD IN SAVANNAH

Lad in Police Toils at End of Third Voyage.

SAVANNAH, Ga., May 12.—(AP)—Thirteen-year-old Bobby Stap, who likes the sea so well he's stowed away three times, was dry-docked at police headquarters here today at the end of his third voyage while officers discussed how best to get him back home to New York.

The young stowaway arrived aboard the coastal steamer City of Chattanooga at 6 o'clock this morning, insisting "I didn't get homesick."

Officers said they were considering sending him back on the same ship when she sails for New York Saturday. He slipped aboard her Monday, only a few hours after he had returned on the liner Queen Mary from an Atlantic crossing as a stowaway.

Mother's Comment.

500 FASCISTS HELD IN BRAZILIAN PROBE

Arrests Continue; Police Seek Greenshirt Head; Vargas Given Ovation.

RIO DE JANEIRO, Brazil, May 12.—(P)—More than 100 Fascist Greenshirts, sailors and marines were arrested today as police pushed their investigation of yesterday's abortive revolt against the government.

Five hundred persons already were in jail.

Judge Barros Barreto, presiding justice of the National Security Tribunal which will try them, said the death penalty might be applied.

Police disclosed tonight that part of the arms found in raids on homes of Fascist leaders were of German make.

One of the participants in the attack on the palace of President Getulio Vargas, police said, was a Lieutenant Severo Fournier, representative in Brazil of a German arms manufacturing firm.

The total number of casualties in three and one-half hours of fighting yesterday outside President Getulio Vargas' palace and other strategic points was not disclosed.

Police said 12 persons were killed and 22 injured, but these figures did not include an announced number of casualties in fighting at the navy arsenal which the rebels held for a short time.

Among those the authorities announced they arrested were 18 Integralists, or Greenshirts, including Father Achilles Mello, a priest; 25 members of the crew of the battleship Sao Paulo, and 72 other sailors and marines.

Police meanwhile pressed their search for Plinio Salgado, head of the Greenshirt organization which was outlawed as a political faction after Vargas took authoritarian control of the nation last November 10.

They found an automobile belonging to Salgado on a highway leading from the capital to the interior, but there was no trace of the owner.

President Vargas received ovations as he passed through the streets on a visit to war material factories.

Prince John of Orleans and Braganza, member of what was once Brazil's imperial family, who was wounded yesterday, was detained for questioning.

Baby Is Recovering After Eye Removal

Helaine Colan, five weeks old, looks hopefully out upon an expectant and sympathetic world following the removal of her left eye at a Chicago hospital. Giloma had threatened both eyes, and fear was even felt for her life. The distracted parents finally consented to sacrifice one eye in the operation on the chance the other might be saved. The fond mother keeps watch near by.

German Agent Protests Refusal Of Justice Bureau To Open Files

WASHINGTON, May 12.—(P)—

An agent of Germany sought in vain today to look through files of the Federal Bureau of Investigation, which J. Edgar Hoover heads.

Dr. Richard Paulig, the Reich representative, asked permission of the German-American Mixed Claims Commission to examine the files in search of documents relating to the munitions disasters at Black Tom and Kingsland, N. J., prior to this country's entry into the World War.

Dr. Paulig charged some documents bearing on the Black Tom and Kingsland cases had been removed from the Justice Department's files, and that Hoover had denied him access to others. Robert Bonyng, the American agent, made an immediate and vigorous reply.

It was preposterous, Bonyng said, for the German government to request a personal examination of the "G-men's" confidential files.

He recalled that this government had been refused permission to examine documents in German offices.

Justice Owen J. Roberts, of the United States supreme court, commission unripe, announced he would make a personal investigation of Hoover's files, if Attorney General Cummings were willing, to find out whether they contained any undisclosed matter pertinent to the disaster claims.

In another ruling today, Postmaster General Farley banned from the mails letters addressed to the Saxon State Lottery (Sachsenische Landeslotterie) or to August Streit in Leipzig, Germany.

Postal officials said letters mailed to this country had urged Americans in the name of "the Third Reich and its leader Adolf Hitler" to participate in the lottery.

people consume more pills and drugs than all the rest of the world and with it all we have the most defective manpower of any other first-class nation," the fourth corps leader said.

Moseley said no two nations have less in common than Germany and Italy and that "the Italian people have always been against such an alliance."

"Japan has her present trouble with China and she fears Russia and England so we have nothing to fear in that quarter," he said. "Then the balance of the European nations is equal so they can't afford to bother with us and that lets them out—so why worry about war?"

Moseley said he greatly favored the President's enlargement of army and navy "but more money should be spent in taking care of our diseased and insane for healthy civilian manpower is the greatest defense."

He believed "no more strings" on CCC boys should be held by the government for wartime emergency than on doctors, lawyers or students. Moseley addressed a dinner in conjunction with the five-day military medical courses of Tulane University, then left for Mobile.

GEORGIANS HONOR MANSION OF 1838

Milledgeville Celebration Marks Centennial of Home of Governors.

MILLEDGEVILLE, Ga., May 12. (P)—This former capital of Georgia turned back the pages of history 100 years today in celebration of the centennial of the mansion, former home of the state's chief executives.

A colorful pageant, depicting events during the past century, and a pilgrimage of 19 contemporary homes featured today's program.

Tomorrow is to be observed by the Georgia State College for Women as parents' day, a series of entertainments highlighted by a barbecue at noon and a costume ball at 4:30 o'clock is planned. At 9:30 o'clock tomorrow night there is to be dancing in the streets before the mansion.

Members of the board of regents of the University System of Georgia will meet at 9 o'clock in the morning in the president's office at G. S. C. W.

RECOVERY MEASURE PASSED IN HOUSE

the figure to $60,000,000. Rankin's program was approved, 259 to 139.

Two major Republican amendments were produced by Representative Taber, Republican, New York, ranking minority member of the committee. These, to turn the relief problem back to the states and to strike out a $965,000,000 appropriation for public works were beaten, 106 to 39 and 91 to 28.

The Republicans denounced the measure as portending "national bankruptcy" and a "cataclysmic inflation" of the currency.

Democrats argued that the sums to be appropriated would provide work and income for 3,500,000 to 4,000,000 persons. The purchasing power this created, they contend, would be reflected in an increased demand for industrial products, which would give business a sharp push toward recovery.

Proposal Rejected.

Representative Woodrum, Democrat, Virginia, of the appropriations committee, recommended that perhaps the states should have more control over relief, but contended that it would be inadvisable "to change the machinery" during an "emergency."

The amendment was rejected 106 to 39.

Taber also proposed that the $75,000,000 appropriation for the National Youth Administration be reduced to $20,000,000. A voice vote defeated the amendment.

A point of order defeated an amendment by Representative Lanzetta, Democrat, New York, to prevent the discharge of WPA workers who are unable to obtain private employment. The same treatment was accorded a proposal by Representative Creel, Democrat, Kentucky, to reimburse the tobacco farmers.

Others Defeated.

Among other amendments beaten was one by Representative O'Connell, Democrat, Montana, to require a minimum monthly wage of $40 on WPA projects.

An amendment by Representative Tarver, Democrat, Georgia, providing that there should be no differential between states exceeding 10 per cent of the maximum rates, lost 78 to 57 on a standing vote.

Opposition vanished, however, when Representative Bolleau, Progressive, Wisconsin, floor leader of the Progressive and Farmer-Laborite bloc, proposed an amendment which would permit all farmers to obtain fertilizer produced by WPA projects.

One Likes It Wild, the Other Likes It Tame PRISON SIT-DOWN STRIKE IS ENDED

Rest Period Discontinuance

Riles Californians.

SAN QUENTIN, Cal., May 12. (P)—About 300 of San Quentin's 4,000 convicts went on a "sit-down" strike today to protest against the discontinuance of a 15-minute noon relaxation period, but prison officials said the demonstration lasted only five hours.

The prisoners stopped work in the shoe shop, the barber shop and the tailor shop.

Bernard Huse, secretary to Warden Court Smith, reported the convicts abandoned the idea after being promised that there would be no punishment or demerits for the participants.

The noon rest period, which enabled convicts in the shops to have a few minutes before and after the mid-day meal, was abandoned a month ago.

crisis more difficult than in 1932," the committee added in a public statement. "Present railroad difficulties are due to the simple fact that present costs of operation are higher than the industry can carry under existing conditions.

"Briefly, this is what has happened to the railroads of the country. Railroad carloadings are less than they were in 1932. The railroads are receiving a lower average per ton-mile than in 1932. Railroad taxes are higher than in 1932. Net earnings are far below 1932. Yet, railway wage rates are now approximately 20 per cent higher than they were in 1932."

CERAMIC SOCIETY WILL GET CHARTER

Each Chapter To Be Feted
at Banquet; Display Planned.

The Georgia Tech student branch of the American Ceramic Society will be chartered by the national group at a banquet at 5:30 o'clock tomorrow afternoon at the Georgian Terrace hotel. Ross C.

Purdy, of Columbus, Ohio, secretary of the national society, will be principal speaker. Emerson Post, past president of the group,
will present the charter.

First organized in 1923, it was 1927 before enrollment had grown large enough to warrant formation of a student branch. The organization functioned for several years without applying for a charter, and then lapsed into inactivity. Reorganized in 1936, the group petitioned for membership in the national society last year.

Following the banquet, the second annual Ceramic carnival will be held in the Ceramic engineering building on the Tech campus.
Some 200 invited guests will have an opportunity to see an exhibition of pottery made by the students, and various methods of processing clay. An exhibition of Georgia kaolin, its products, and a small-scale kaolin pit model will be emphasized.

Pottery souvenirs, made by the students, will be distributed as favors.

Officers of the students branch are: Holt B. Grace, president; D. L.
Nowell, vice president; R. B. Williams, secretary, and M. J. Scav-ens, treasurer.

CHARLES EVANS HUGHES.

WALLACE CLAIMS HUGHES SWITCHED

Unprecedented Letter Sent
Chief Justice by Agriculture Secretary.

we nevertheless felt that its adoption would help to assure fair play to all parties and made it a part of our regular procedure in all cases arising under the packers and stockyards act and similar legislation. I am glad to know that the court now has approved the procedure which the department already had inaugurated."

Preceding Administration.
"The particular case in question, of course, originated under the preceding administration in 1930 and under a law adopted in 1921," the letter continued. "Up until this present administration no examiner's report in connection with hearings under the packers' and stockyards' act had been thought essential. But as you point out in your opinion of April 25, administrative agencies are more and more necessary in our complex society, and it is important that all citizens be assured of fair play."

Hughes, in his speech earlier in the day to the American Law Institute, had devoted much time to a discussion of proper procedure by administrative agencies.

Another portion of the speech dealing with judges, he praised the bench in general, but said some judges do harm because of their "conspicuous ineptness."

He said "the maintenance of the standards of judicial office rests primarily with the electorate, where judges are elected, and with the appointing power, where they are appointed, and in both relations a vigilant bar through its organized efforts to secure good judges should exercise, and should constantly seek to exercise, a potent influence."

Need for Respect.

Declaring there is vital need for continued respect for the judicial tradition of independence and impartiality, he added:

"It is in the judicial process that we find the most developed and systematic effort of a Democratic community to maintain the interests of justice by opposing reason to passion, accepted principles to unbridled discretion, and the requirements of fair play to the favoritism or tyranny of power."

This was the chief justice's first public address since the fight last summer over President Roosevelt's proposal to reorganize the judiciary.

The nation's leading lawyers who heard Hughes speak were reminded of that struggle by a letter from President Roosevelt, read to the meeting.

"No one," the President said, "can read the legal record of the last year without appreciating that we in our day are again reshaping our legal philosophy to keep pace with the needs of our people and the spirit of our institutions."

The President's court bill, which was beaten, was followed by a series of supreme court opinions favorable to the administration.

Besides his remarks on judges, Hughes also said that government administrative agencies must function with judicial "impartiality and independence" if they are to prove successful.

The multiplication of administrative agencies is the outstanding characteristic of our time," he said, adding that they would succeed in their mission "to the extent that they perform their work with the recognized responsibility which attaches to judges and with the impartiality and independence which is associated with the judicial office."

Commission Tendency.

"I notice," he asserted, "that there is a tendency, in the desire to emphasize the importance of obtaining flexibility and expediency in particular classes of cases, to depreciate the work of the courts and by comparison to exalt administrative boards and commissions."

"Such efforts are short-sighted and are not in the interest of the suitable development of administrative agencies."

"It must be remembered that to the courts the community still looks for the standards of judicial conduct."

"The controversies within the range of administrative action may be different and extremely important, and they may call for a particular type of experience and special methods of inquiry, but the spirit which should animate that action, if the administrative authority is to be properly exercised, must be the spirit of the just judge."

"Whatever the shortcomings of courts, and whatever the need of administrative bodies, it is still the courts which stand out as the exemplars of the tradition of independence and impartiality."

ATLANTA BAPTISTS
READ DISCUSSIONS
OPENING SESSION

J. B. Lawrence Makes
Report of Home Mission Board.

By JOE W. BURTON,
Special Constitution Correspondent.

ICHMOND, Va., May 12.—Atlanta Baptist leaders were in the city at the opening night session of the Southern Baptist convention today as Dr. J. B. Lawrence, executive secretary-treasurer, made the report of the home mission board.

The function of this convention, he said, "is to direct attention to the materialistic tendencies and social attitudes that hinder the advance of the kingdom of God." Pointing out the progress made by agency during the year, Dr. Lawrence said that 23 new missionaries were appointed, bringing the total to 332; that $508,67 had been received, this amount being an increase of 14 cent, and that $145,560.37 had been paid on debts.

Some of Lawrence's associates from Atlanta, including Dr. and Q. Leavell, superintendent of evangelism; Dr. J. W. Beagle, Noble Y. Beall and Rev. Jacob Tenhaus, field secretaries and 35 missionaries from Southern mission fields.

In our own south are sections as destitute as in Africa," said Dr. Ryland Knight, pastor of the Second Ponce de Leon Baptist church in Atlanta, as he gave a report on negro ministry of education. Voodooism, heresy and superstition prevail in some places in greater degree than in uncivilized lands, he pointing out the need of providing educational opportunities for negro preachers, he called on them Baptists to provide additional appropriations through state mission boards and the home mission board to meet this need.

Atlanta, he declared, there are 900 negro Baptist ministers, 90 of whom are carrying on a full-distance ministry in other parts of the state. Three-fifths of negro church members are Baptists, but we are losing them due to other denominations to no religion, he said.

A nation-wide radio broadcast will be on the air regularly to proclaim the Baptist message, if launched today at a meeting called by Rev. S. F. Lowe, of Atlanta, are adopted by the convention. The plan will be brought to the convention by Chairman F. Ellis A. Fuller, Dr. Louis D. Brown and B. M. Callaway were associated with their fellow Atlantans in calling the meeting and in the discussions looking to establishment of a Baptist radio program.

SOUTHERN BAPTISTS
UNITIFICATION
ICHMOND, Va., May 12.—(AP) Southern Baptist convention posed of more than 5,000 representatives of nearly 5,000,000 church members adopted by a standing vote today a report strongly opposing organic union of all denominations into one church.

The report on the interdenominational movement was presented by V. R. White of Oklahoma City, its spokesman for Dr. George W. Truett of Dallas, Texas, a former convention president, who was absent because of illness. White said the report reaffirmed the "historic position" of southern Baptists. The statement commanded spiritual union of all who follow Jesus Christ, but asserted such fellowship does not depend on "organization, form or style." It warned against "mechanical" unionism and stressed appeal to "individual conscience."

MORE COMPETITION

The Argentine government has recently sent an economic mission to Japan, headed by Dr. G. Crane, former governor of the state of Mendoza and F. Romero-Day, former minister of industry.

The result of that mission, briefly, is that Argentina has agreed to increase its imports of Japanese textile goods on the condition that Japan purchase more wool, meat, hides and cotton from the Argentine. It was flatly stated by the mission that the proposed increase in textile purchases from Japan would involve a corresponding decrease in such imports from other countries.

Which, frankly translated, means less sales for American and British textile mills in Argentina, which has been a valuable customer for many years.

At the same time, it means a further restriction of the market for American raised cotton. Japan will, in future, look more to South America for her supplies of the staple, instead of to the cotton growing regions of our own southern states.

Another report is of interest to the cotton south.

From India comes word that the production of superior quality staple cotton is making great progress in that country. The news is contained in a report by Sir William Hembury, of the British Cotton Growers Association. Especially in the Sind province, he states, is cotton production, of high quality, advancing rapidly. And, with irrigation now possible in the Punjab, large acreages there, formerly jungle or desert, have been turned over to cotton growers.

Thus once again the world strengthens its independence of America as a source of cotton supply. While this country restricts its output and, through governmental subsidies in various forms, encourages foreign producers to grow the staple, the cotton farmers of the south must, perforce, seek other crops to replace what once was the greatest natural source of wealth in the country. Cotton is rapidly becoming a product without an export market. The day is not far distant when American production will have to be limited to the domestic demand alone. And maybe that will shrink, for Brazilian cotton has already been imported by textile mills in this country.

CO-OPERATION

One of the most used, and oftentimes misused, words in the vocabulary is co-operation. And its meaning depends entirely on who is using it. One example of strange use is its employment in Japanese diplomacy. Whenever the Chinese have refused to give up any part of their country without a fight, they have been charged with an absence of understanding—a lack of co-operation. No one can be blamed for a lack of co-operation in cutting his own throat.

Probably the very acme of co-operation is the performance of a symphony orchestra. All the players co-operate in making the program a success. They follow the pattern, the music, before them. If they didn't, the result would be a series of discords, just as there are discords in other co-operative endeavors. In playing a symphony, of course, all the players are determined to harmonize. Their main purpose is a perfect performance of the score.

Queerly enough, too, the usual big symphony orchestra is composed of more divergent views on how the world and everything in it should be run, than would probably be found among any equal number of men on earth under one roof. But they meet on common ground. There is nothing personal or selfish about it. They are there to play the music, to harmonize a lot of notes, to turn out an artistic performance. So, Communists, Fascists, Nazis, aristocrats and capitalists all work together in perfect co-operation. It indicates beyond doubt that these forces can co-operate when the objective is the same—a perfect performance.

But if the leader, or anybody else in the organization, repeatedly ran in some "sour notes," out of tune with the objective—a perfect performance—co-operation would then and there be at an end. Perhaps the nation's leaders, political, industrial and labor, could well take a lesson from the symphony orchestra. That is, if their objective is the same—working for the good of all.

Looking at it another way, every Democracy needs a Jersey City, for purposes of comparison.

The Swiss are to feature the League of Nations in a new series of postage stamps. It is not said if this is in honor or the memory of same.

In the world's present state, that old weather misprint, "fair Thursday, followed by Friday," sounds like the one airtight prediction.

IMPORTANT COURT DECISION

Now and then a case comes before the courts which, because of its far reaching importance in the lives of the people, calls for a reversal of or a radical change in long accepted legal opinion. And the courts have never hesitated in rectifying injustices and mistakes as they have been brought before them for adjudication. Otherwise, the law could not have developed and broadened to meet the exigencies of a changing civilization. It would have remained immovably fixed, forever clouded in the doubts and superstitions of medievalism.

The recent decision of the supreme court of the United States in Erie Railroad vs. Tompkins continues to indicate that the nation's highest tribunal does not falter, even in reversing itself, when it comes to removing injustices and errors. The importance of the case, of course, hangs on a principle of law, rather than on the affairs of the unfortunate Tompkins, who was injured by a door swinging from a freight car in a passing train. But out of his suit for damages arose the necessity of again interpreting, in part, the federal judiciary act of 1789.

The decision, which will henceforth require federal courts to follow state laws, is built upon the fact that "there is no federal general common law." Section 34 of the act provides that "the laws of the several states, except when the constitution otherwise provides, shall be regarded as rules of decision in trials at common law, in the courts of the United States, in cases where they apply."

But for 95 years, ever since the opinion in the case of Swift vs. Tyson, the federal courts have exercised an independent judgment as to what the common law of the states was, or should have been. This simply meant that the federal courts have been assuming, to quote from the opinion, "the power to declare rules of decision which congress was confessedly without power to enact as statutes. The unconstitutionality of the course pursued has now been made clear."

The decision makes it mandatory that federal courts, in the future, not only be governed by state statutory law, but by the opinions—the unwritten law—of the state courts as well. Therefore many of the technical grounds, advantageous presumably in most instances, on which litigants have gone into or succeeded in transferring their cases to federal courts, have been removed or modified.

The sovereignty of the individual states has undoubtedly been strengthened by the decision. Justice Brandeis, speaking for the majority of the court, said: "This court and the lower courts (federal courts) have invaded rights which in our opinion are reserved by the constitution to the several states."

This reaffirmation of the principle of states' rights by the supreme court of the United States, especially at a time when strong centralized government is so widely advocated in many quarters, comes as a refreshing indication that the future of a free people is in good hands.

QUESTIONABLE STRATEGY

The attack on Amoy by the Japanese is admittedly a strategic move, with the object of drawing Chinese troops away from the central area where the armies of Nippon are, at least, stalemate and where the Chinese give strong indication of ultimately defeating the invaders.

Possibly this is a wise move by the Japanese for immediate result, but it is extremely doubtful if it will prove effective over the longer view. For the one great advantage possessed by China in its struggle with Japan is a tremendous preponderance of man power. The human resources of the Celestial republic are practically inexhaustible.

On the other hand Japan, over crowded though its island empire may be, has no such reservoir of man power upon which to draw. The logical conclusion would be that scattering of the areas of active warfare must ultimately react to the benefit of China and to the handicapping of Japan. For it is the side with limited man power which should benefit by concentration of military activity. The more Japan scatters her effort, the more effective will China's numerical advantage be.

Japan may spread the war over a score of operations, but China is able to outnumber her on every front.

At the present forward rate of progress into China, the invading Japanese should be back in Tokyo for the '40 Olympics.

DO TOYS MAKE MEN?

(From the Memphis Commercial Appeal.)

Debate has flourished at odd times in this country over the mental, moral, spiritual and ethical effects of the sort of toys given youngsters, particularly at Christmas. Now and again the children go for warlike playthings. Some folks were pretty upset over this sign of belligerency in youth and raised a good deal of hullabaloo over it. It is not definitely established that toys make men, but, in any case, the omens are more than good just now.

The annual American Toy Fair has already been staged in New York. Observers report that less than 1 per cent of the devices displayed in approximately seven acres of floor space had any military significance whatever. Of the traditional tin soldiers, usually made of lead or rubber these days, we believe, there was only a good handful.

The positive side one may report a considerable trend toward animals, foreign and domestic. There were also a great many mechanical toys featuring the wonders and mysteries of the automobile and airplane as employed in the enterprises of peace. It is highly interesting to be told that one of the most popular exhibits was a barnyard setup that children can operate by remote control. Does this, we idly wonder, forecast a considerable acceleration in the back-to-the-farm movement, or is it just the fact that so many children these days find a lion a more familiar and accustomed sight than a pig or a cow?

At any rate, it seems as though the worthy folks who are so alert at looking for signs that the younger generation is being ruined and so delightfully agitated when they find them might settle back and relax for a few minutes. The war toy menace has apparently been smothered.

Almost daily I meet with some question regarding conditions in the world today which this book clearly answers. But far beyond the average questions arising in daily conversations will one find interest and appeal in this altogether timely study by Mr. Tracy. He presents the one-party super-

Public Would Punish WPA Officials Who Try to Coerce Voters; 80 Per Cent in Survey Favor Prison Terms as Hopkins Warns Staff; Relievers Assured of Complete Freedom in Voting.

By DR. GEORGE GALLUP, Director, American Institute of Public Opinion.

NEW YORK, May 12.—Public opinion overwhelmingly indorses the recent suggestion of Representative Bruce Barton that congress should provide penitentiary sentences for any federal spending official who influences the vote of persons receiving government funds. Nearly nine out of every ten voters reached in a nation-wide canvass favor Representative Barton's idea.

The survey was completed by the American Institute of Public Opinion just before WPA Administrator Hopkins, apparently worried lest politics creep into the administering of relief, began sending every WPA worker a letter assuring him that he would not lose his job because of the way he votes in any election. The letter added the warning that all WPA officials who attempt to influence the vote of persons on relief will be dismissed.

The Institute survey asked voters in all walks of life: "How large a part does politics play in giving relief in your community, none, a little, or quite a bit?"

The national vote was:

Yes 86%
No 14%

MAJORITY OF VOTERS FAVOR STRICT LAW

A majority of both Democrats and Republicans in the survey favor such a law. So do most persons who are on relief, their vote being 82 per cent for the law, 18 per cent against it.

The issue of politics-in-spending is particularly important now with the Roosevelt administration embarked on a huge spending program, and with the congressional elections only six months off. Many observers have pointed to the great power which the federal government can exercise over voters simply through the distribution of money.

New Deal critics argue that the

How Serious

Is This Problem?

An editorial in a recent issue of The Campbell News, published at Fairburn, states that Atlanta has an after-school problem and adds the devout wish that the same problem will never afflict other schools in the metropolitan area.

Briefly, says the editorial, "it has become popular with hundreds of Atlanta youngsters when school is dismissed to invade the downtown section of the city and remain there until dusk. They go to town to steep in excitement and experience adventure."

Just exactly how much excitement there is in which to "steep" in downtown Atlanta I am unaware. That is, of course, from the viewpoint of youth. Rather prosaic, a place to work, to my notion. Of course the mere presence of crowds may be exciting to some and there may be hidden places where adventure may be experienced. But if there are, I'm woefully innocent about them.

However I agree with the editorial to the extent that it is not good for children to spend their leisure hours loafing around the city. If for no other reason than that the air they breathe is more polluted with smoke and carbon dioxide from auto exhausts than is the air in the residential districts and the country.

And, if they can find excitement, I suspect it is not the right kind. There's excitement to be had in normal and healthy ways, too. On the baseball diamond or in the swimming pool, for instance.

New Worries For Merchants.

Continuing, the Campbell News says:

"They don't always go to the theaters, but hundreds of them visit soda fountains, clubs and hangouts. They fraternize with characters whom their parents would object to in stentorian tones if they knew of the friendships.

"As a result of their invasion, merchants, irrigists, hotel-keepers, and lunch-stand operators have new worries. They don't

OURS AND THEIRS.

M. E. Tracy, editor of Current History, has made a comparative study of Italy, Germany, Russia and the United States, which will appear May 1, in book form under the title, "Our Country, Our People, and Theirs," published by the Macmillan Company. It is quite unique among the books I have examined lately. The book is so arranged that you have the comparative facts under each heading in four parallel columns on each page. And on almost every page you have a chart illustrating the facts set forth in the reading matter.

Among the subjects discussed in detail are: Area and Resources; Population; Agriculture; Industry; Labor; Business and Trade; Finance; Living Conditions; Transportation; Communication; Education; Culture; Recreation; The Family; Health; Government; National Defense; Law Enforcement; Crime and Penology; Human Rights; Social Security; and Social Organization. I wish he might have added Religion.

Almost daily I meet with some question regarding conditions in the world today which this book clearly answers. But far beyond the average questions arising in daily conversations will one find interest and appeal in this altogether timely study by Mr. Tracy. He presents the one-party super-

BOYS' CLUB CHARTER APPLICATION READY; DIRECTOR IS NAMED

Fulton Probation Officer, W. W. Woolfolk, Appointed by Incorporators.

By AL HAILEY.
A boys' club for Atlanta youngsters who have no place to work and play in their hours after school was assured yesterday when a group of Atlantans organized the Atlanta Boys' Club and laid plans to obtain a charter today in Fulton Superior court.

The club will be ready to open June 15. Use of a large building housing a gymnasium, game and reading rooms at 314 Washington street has been donated by the Salvation Army.

Youngsters of all ages who have been unable to do the things boys naturally like to do will get a chance to run their own clubhouse, work out programs of play, and to do things for themselves.

Aims of Club.
The corporation shall always endeavor to rehabilitate boys by promoting the ability of boys to do things for themselves and others, and to teach them patriotism, courage, self-reliance and kindred virtues," the petition for charter reads.

Organization of the club was launched with appointment of W. W. Woolfolk, probation officer of Fulton county juvenile court, as executive director.

The meeting yesterday climaxed several months of work. Atlanta civic clubs have indorsed plans for the club.

Henry Heinz, chairman of the organizing committee, announced it was ready to form the club and open the clubhouse. He said a tentative budget set operating expenses at $5,000 per year, while $1,000 would be required immediately to equip and furnish the building.

Woolfolk, who is resigning his county position to take up work with the boys' club, said an enrollment of 1,000 could be expected by the first of next year.

Five Schools Near By.
Woolfolk pointed out that there are five public schools in the vicinity of the clubhouse on Washington street and there are countless children forced to play in the streets with no supervision and no seldom get attention in their overcrowded homes.

Each boy who becomes a member of the club will pay a small membership fee when he joins in order to stimulate the feeling of ownership and responsibility among the youngsters.

Incorporators listed in the petition for charter are Henry C. Hinz, Hal F. Hertz, Ernest Holtz, Steve Draper and Rabbi David Marx.

Under terms of the constitution, the object is "to promote the physical, mental and moral well-being of the boys of Atlanta by providing such means of training and amusement as in the judgment of the directors may seem most likely to achieve the desired ends."

Club Non-Sectarian.
The club is to be "philanthropic and non-sectarian," accepting boys of all denominations.

Management will be vested in a board of directors of "not less than five or more than 35." An executive committee of seven, comprised of the officers of the corporation and two additional members appointed by the president, will conduct affairs of the corporation, subject to general direction of the board of directors. Officers and members of the board will be named when the organization committee meets May in the Ansley hotel to accept charters.

"The corporation may receive guests, devices and gifts of every real or personal," the charter sets out. "No part of the net assets shall ever be used for private or corporate gain or profit of the directors, incorporators, officers or employees of the corporation."

Charitable Purposes.
The sole purpose of said corporation shall be to conduct all its activities exclusively for charitable purposes," it was said. The club will be underwritten by contributions of Atlanta citizens and organizations.

Enough money for the launching of the club in which young men who otherwise wouldn't have chance will get a place to develop under trained supervisors has been promised. Heinz said at a meeting, expressing confidence that Atlantans will be ready to lend a hand when called on for support.

Woolfolk is leaving tomorrow for Chicago, Ill., to attend the National Boys' Club conference.

Macon County Jury Fails To Recommend Mercy for Arnold Allen.

OGLETHORPE, Ga., May 19.—(AP)—A Macon county superior court jury found Arnold Allen guilty today of the murder of his 78-year-old mother, Mrs. Catherine Allen.

Allen, an only son, was charged with having beaten his mother March 22, inflicting injuries from which she died in a local hospital eight days later.

The jury did not recommend mercy, making the death penalty mandatory. Judge W. M. Harper, who presided, will pronounce sentence later.

The state, represented by Solicitor General E. L. Forrester, based its case on the evidence of wounds from which Mrs. Allen died and on the testimony of Sheriff W. T. Jolly.

The sheriff testified that Allen at the time of his arrest said he had "whipped" his mother because she would not cook dinner for him.

statement made by Mrs. Allen just before her death, saying her son, 40 years old, beat her because he wanted to get a small amount of money she had.

Allen, in an unsworn statement to the jury, said he did not remember what had happened and declared that, if he did beat his mother, it must have been because he was under the influence of liquor.

It was understood here that a motion for a new trial has been filed by Allen's attorneys.

Mrs. Allen was a life-long resident of Oglethorpe.

JAPANESE ARMIES THREATEN TO SEVER 'LIFE-LINE' RAILWAY

Rising Sun Forces Capture Yungcheng After Terrific Bombardment.

SHANGHAI, May 13.—(Friday) (P)—Japanese armies closed in today in a gigantic pincer movement that directly threatened Suchow, goal of their campaign, and China's hold on the vital central front.

Dozens of Japanese columns, supported by tanks, warplanes and big guns, hammered the Chinese defenders north and south of the Lunghai railroad, east-west "life-line" that crosses the important north-south Peiping-Hankow railroad at Suchow.

Tangshan, a station on the Lunghai between Kweilin and Suchow, became the danger spot. Chinese acknowledged they had lost Yungcheng, about 30 miles south of Tangshan and 45 miles each of Kweilin, after a terrific Japanese bombardment leveled their defenses.

Railway Threatened.

Capture of Yungcheng, therefore, placed a Japanese force 30 miles south of the Lunghai and 50 miles in a direct line from Suchow. On the north, the deepest-penetrating Japanese column was only three miles from the Lunghai, threatening to sever it at Sianchen, 65 miles east of Suchow.

Japanese predicted Thursday night Sianchen would be captured "within 48 hours."

(At Hankow, seat of the Chinese government, however, officials declared defense forces were resisting the Japanese advance toward Kweilin despite the most in-

Freddie Rich Declares Wife Is Family Gambler

NEW YORK, May 12.—(P)—Freddie Rich said today it was his wife, not he, who "wore the gambling pants in the family."

The orchestral leader disputed his wife's separation suit testimony that she was forced to trade in the stock market to cover his losses at race track. He never lost more than $50 at a time, he said, but she dropped thousands at roulette.

"She always beat me to the gun and most of the time she was there ahead of me," he testified.

Extensive Japanese bombardment since Nanking.

(With strong, long prepared positions held by amply provided veteran troops, they expressed confidence they still could stop Japan's vast offensive.)

With the Rising Sun flag flying over Amoy, island seaport 600 miles south of Shanghai, Japanese marines continued mopping up Chinese stragglers who were unable to escape to the mainland.

Squadrons of Japanese planes have been bombing important Lunghai towns and Chinese troop concentrations while Japanese forces, estimated at more than 200,000 men, have been squeezing against the railway from north and south.

AX SLAYER OF WIFE IS SENT TO ASYLUM

WEST PALM BEACH, Fla., May 12.—(P)—Frank Sordin, 51-year-old World War veteran charged with the ax slaying of his wife in the presence of their five small children at their home here, was acquitted of first-degree murder today, but was committed to the state hospital for the insane for the rest of his life.

Circuit Judge Chillingworth directed the jury to acquit Sordin on grounds of temporary insanity at the time of the crime and asked the jurors to decide whether the man should be liberated or sent to a hospital for mental patients.

RFC HEAD BOOMED FOR PRESIDENCY

Arkansas Governor Proposes Jesse Jones for Democratic Nomination.

SILOAM SPRINGS, Ark., May 12.—(P)—Governor Carl E. Bailey of Arkansas, today "nominated" Jesse H. Jones, chairman of the Reconstruction Finance Corporation, for the presidency in 1940.

Bailey proposed the Texan Democratic presidential nominee at a banquet on John Brown University campus where Jones had just received an honorary degree of doctor of laws, at the university's annual commencement exercises.

Rising to pay tribute to the RF chairman, Governor Bailey said "I suggest that we indicate here today that we would like to see Jesse H. Jones the Democratic party's 'graduate' for that commencement exercise."

Martha Dunwoody and Bill Allen don't look too bored with each other as they sight a rescue ship. Marooned for all of several hours last night at Peachtree Gardens during the Shipwreck Ball of Oglethorpe chapter of Delta Sigma Phi, the couple was comfortably dressed for weather in the tropics. It was a success from a photographer's angle.

RIVERS PROMISES COUNTY TAX RELIEF

Matthews and Brewster Also Address Peace Officers in Augusta.

AUGUSTA, Ga., May 12.—(P)—Governor Rivers today pledged the county and peace officers of Georgia adequate revenues to take the place of money taken away by the state intangible tax and homestead exemptions.

"If the last legislature didn't make it up," he said, "the next one will."

"There must be co-operation between the state and local government, or neither will be efficient as it should be."

Point by point he told the officials, who are the controlling political forces in their counties and hence in the state, that his program was aimed at a better Georgia and not at extinguishing local self-government.

Local Option Law.

A plea for co-operation of local authorities in enforcing the local option liquor law was made by T. Grady Head, commissioner of revenue.

"Atlanta," he said, "still drinks as much corn whisky as ever. The legislature left enforcement up to local authorities."

Consolidation of Georgia counties would result in "negligible" savings in governmental costs, C. A. Matthews, chairman of the board of directors of the association, said in an address.

He said the only saving from consolidation would be the cost of maintaining buildings. In small counties, he said, this cost is negligible.

Matthews has led the commissioners' fight to prevent the state from taking over local governmental functions. He said con-

Oglethorpe Student 'Castaways' Take Refuge on Desert Island

Oglethorpe students cast themselves and their dates away on a desert island last night, and presumably a good time was had by all.

The occasion was the dance given by Delta Sigma Phi at Peachtree Gardens. It was titled "A Shipwreck Ball." And it was.

The ship was presumably a tropical cruise ship. The passenger list was something even a tropical cruise ship out of New Orleans never saw. Quite a few of the castaways appeared genuine.

From the looks of others, the cruise director had evidently planned a barnyard dance the night they struck an empty beer keg and sank.

The working girls and school teachers on vacation were all fetching in overalls and street clothes. They had obviously been in no hurry to abandon ship. Every curl was in place. The tired businessmen on a rest cure, or on the make, as the case may have been, were in a bigger hurry. They landed in everything from flannel underwear delightful in the tropics, to the near nothing as school authorities would allow.

Quite a few of the stags could be heard muttering for Madeleine Carroll, and cursing the day they went to Oglethorpe instead of Columbia. "Madeleine wouldn't have done us like this," was the gist of their plaint.

The girls didn't look so cheerful either.

But nobody brought a Bible to read.

NAMED TO CHURCH BODY.

ATHENS, Ga., May 12.—Miss Louise St. John, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. D. B. St. John, has been named a member of the Youth Crusade Commission appointed by the College of Bishops of the Methodist Episcopal Church, South, it was announced today.

The commission is composed of two bishops, Dr. Paul B. Kern and Dr. Frank Smith, prominent pastors and laymen, and a group of young people.

He said government became more costly and inefficient when it was centered in state hands rather than local units.

Major Phil Brewster, state director of public safety, told the convention the state highway patrol had reduced the average number of traffic deaths from 21 to 17 weekly.

He said the state had the third highest traffic death rate in the country and that education and enforcement would bring down the traffic death rate.

STALIN SURE OF ELECTION.

MOSCOW, May 12.—(P)—Joseph Stalin today accepted nomination for a seat in the supreme Soviet, or nominal legislative council, of his native Georgia. He was certain of election without opposition.

He made the statement during a two-hour luncheon at which he was host to a half dozen foreign press representatives.

Something, It Seems, Is Up Today What With It Being Friday, the 13th

Mayor Hartsfield To Defy Freya by Sitting Under Ladder, Opening Umbrella Indoors and Generally Kicking Up a Storm.

By A. D. MANNING.

Mayor Hartsfield, quite an advocate of psychic research, will sit in a newspaper office today under a ladder. He will then open an umbrella, break a mirror with one foot and kick over a pot of salt with another.

Mayor Hartsfield has a warm and bubbling personality with plenty of spring in his walk, but that is not his usual way of starting a day. It happens, he said last night, that today is this year's only Friday the 13th, and he wants to put the freeze on Freya.

Freya is the northern Venus whose racket is to put the chill on whatever goes on today—Friday the 13th. "It's time," the mayor said, "somebody told her to go freya negg."

Ignored by Business.

In the world of Atlanta business, Friday the 13th is going to be ignored. But L. O. Moseley, manager of a downtown hotel, said: "We're all set. We eliminated the 13th floor many years ago. In fact we never did build one. We just stopped at an even dozen. This also prevents guests from jumping from the 12th to the 14th. That squares us," he said anxiously.

But just then a bellboy wearing the numeral "13" happened along. This was pointed out to him. "Well, now, for goodness sake," said Moseley, "and here comes the hotel watchman and his number is 13, too." Suddenly there was a smacking sound as of a palm slapping against a brow, and Mr. Moseley waxed unprintable.

"What's the matter?" he yelled. "You asked what's the matter! My sweepstakes ticket has the number 13 on it."

And in a downtown barber shop, customers and barbers yesterday were discussing today's possibilities. "You know," said the barber, "there'll be ladders and things to walk under today. But as for me, I'm going to be careful of all the mirrors that are around. Oh no, I'm not going to hide them, but just the same I am going to be careful not to throw things around."

Troy Pops Up.

Jack Troy (pinch-hitting for Ralph McGill), assistant sports editor of The Constitution, explained last night he got sore at jinxes and determined to expose them after long association with baseball players, particularly those in the Southern league.

Jack said: "I knew a manager who went to the ball park once in a blue shirt and blue tie and won a ball game—a crucial one. Then he wouldn't change his shirt for two weeks—not until the team lost a couple of games.

"Well, those jinxes can't do that to me and get away with it. I'm going to have black cats, a broken mirror and ladders all around my desk today and salt spilled on my typewriter."

But Angelo Hanjars, of a certain food emporium, shook his head a little sadly when he heard about Mr. Troy and the salt, he said. "I don't like people who spill salt. You see I'm in the restaurant business."

So there'll be those who'll humor the old 'ol' girl, Freya, along today and there'll be others who will give her quite a headache.

Parents and other visitors will inspect the campus during the all-day open house.

A field meet on Grant field, open to the public, will be held this afternoon.

A review and exhibition will be held by the military and naval R. O. T. C. units at 7:30 o'clock tonight on Grant field. Competitions among battalions, companies, squads and individuals in drill and general military excellence will occupy a major portion of the colorful program.

Second Big Apartment Sold Here in 2 Days

Sale of another large apartment, the second in two days, was reported yesterday, this being the transfer of a large three-story brick structure, with 14 four and five-room units, at 22-24 Collier road, from Brannen Holding Company to the Grawine Investment Company, a group of Atlanta business men.

No consideration was announced, but it is understood the sale price was near $45,000. The structure is located at the corner of Anjaco road, one block off Peachtree road, and is completely occupied. Included in the deal also was a large lot in the rear on which a number of garages are located for the convenience of tenants. The sale was negotiated by G. W. Withers, of Haas & Dodd, realtors.

COOGAN'S CLAIMS TO CASH REBUTTED

Mother, Stepfather Say He Earned But $1,500,000.

LOS ANGELES, May 12.—(AP)—Jackie Coogan's mother and his stepfather, Arthur L. Bernstein, today denied in four legal answers his claims to the $4,000,000 he says he earned as a child movie star.

They said Jackie earned, from all sources, only $1,500,000. They said also he never was "kicked out of his mother's home," as he has charged, and that he was "accorded all the care mother love could give him."

That Jackie has no legal claim to the money, because it is legally and rightfully his mother's, was another assertion.

Bernstein, who married Mrs. Coogan after John R. Coogan was killed in a traffic accident, says he neither has nor wants any interest in the money Jackie says his.

MOROLINE FOR CUTS
LAWN WHITE PETROLEUM OIL
LARGE JARS 5 AND 10c

THIS is the tire that's causing all the talk!

YOU don't need to be told that the tire you see pictured here is a Goodyear.

No other tire in all the world has a tread design that comes within gunshot of Goodyear's famous All-Weather Tread.

You've learned to know that tread because you've seen it on more tires, on more cars, on more roads, than any other ever developed.

The last Goodyears you bought—whether yesterday, or six months or two years or ten years ago—looked much the same.

In fact, throughout the last 25 years, no tire maker—not even Goodyear—has been able to better the non-skid safety and traction efficiency of that basic diamond-block pattern.

Meanwhile, what has happened to other tires?

Year by year you've seen them changed in tread design—in a mad scramble to match Goodyear. From buttons and knobs to ribs and wrinkles—always "new," always "amazing"—always changing.

But all the while, Goodyears with their proved center-traction All-Weather Tread have outsold any other make of tire—every year for 23 consecutive years!

The reason is plain. "Nothing succeeds like success."—and Goodyears make good as the safest, surest-footed, longest-wearing tires your money can buy.

Naturally, Goodyears have been progressively improved to meet and master changing motoring conditions.

THIS INFALLIBLE SAFETY MEMBER COMPLETES THE MODERN TIRE

The only sure protection against blowouts is the GOODYEAR LIFEGUARD—an invulnerable reserve tire that replaces the conventional inner tube inside your casing. When a blowout occurs the LifeGuard keeps enough air under you to carry the car to a safe normal stop without the slightest lurch or swerve.

For instance the tread of the 1938 Goodyear "G-3" shown here is deeper, for longer wear. It's wider and flatter, for more road contact. The diamonds are nested closer for faster starts, quicker stops, greater traction.

And the rubber in that dependable tread is tougher.

An exclusive Goodyear compound gives it special durability and "spring" to fight the grind-away action of today's high-speed travel on hard-surfaced roads.

But the basic pattern is the one you know, time-tested, time-proved—for the simple reason it's the best that has yet been devised.

Keep that in mind when you spend your good money for tires, and let your common sense be your guide!

Georgia Participation May 23 Mapped by Committee Here.

Lewis F. Gordon, assistant vice president of the Citizens & Southern National Bank, yesterday was named head of a committee of business leaders to make plans for Georgia's participation May 23 in the "What Helps Business Helps You" campaign.

Announcement of formation of the committee was made by C. F. Palmer, president of the Chamber of Commerce.

Besides Gordon, those named to the group include Cully A. Cobb, Jackson P. Dick, Thomas C. Dickson, Norman E. Elsas, W. Eugene Harrington, Thomas C. Law, Sidney L. Wellborn, T. Guy Woolford and Wiley L. Moore.

The purpose of the campaign is to remind the people of Georgia of the part business plays in providing jobs, creating wealth and increasing the prosperity of the citizens of the state, Palmer said.

Among activities planned for Atlanta are daily radio broadcasts by prominent businessmen, addresses before civic clubs and employee groups, and distribution of literature and display material.

"Our problem in Georgia is not the same as that of some other sections of the country," said Gordon. "We are primarily an agricultural state, but agriculture by itself can't support our people. It can't pay the bills."

"We need in addition the pay rolls and purchasing power provided by adequately developed commerce and industry. We need more business and industry to provide more jobs and more wages, but first we've got to show that existing business can operate in Georgia at a reasonable profit.

"That depends to a large extent upon the people themselves."

Maclay Salfisberg, a junior from East Orange, N. J., has been chosen president of the Oglethorpe University student body for the 1938-39 school year, acting Dean John Patrick announced last night. Miss Eleanor Ivey, of Atlanta, was chosen vice president.

Oglethorpe students went to the polls yesterday after two weeks of intensive campaigning by the three major tickets, the "Black and Gold," the "Purity," and the "Progressive" parties.

Salfisberg, a candidate on the "Black and Gold" ticket, won the presidency by the margin of three votes over Candidate Edward Schwabe, of the "Progressive" party.

Others elected were Ansel Pault, vice president; Paul Brock, editor of the Yamacraw, student yearbook; Edward Schwabe, business manager of the yearbook, and Craig Williams, student advisor. The retiring president is Bob Owens.

U. S. NOT TO RECOGNIZE ETHIOPIAN CONQUEST

WASHINGTON, May 12.—(P)—

At almost the same moment that the League of Nations granted Britain and France their freedom to recognize Italian Ethiopia, Secretary Hull stated today this government's determination not to recognize conquered territory.

Hull declared, "our policy remains absolutely unchanged."

He referred to his 14 "basic fundamental principles and policies" of last July 16 and said:

"We have not deviated and we do not intend to deviate from any of these principles and policies."

Fear of Russia Declared Ruling Poland, Rumania in Czecho Crisis

Pertinax Terms It Tragic Coincidence That League Impaired Article XVI at Same Time Hitler Stiffened Sudeten Attitude.

By PERTINAX
(Copyright 1938, for The Constitution and North American Newspaper Alliance, Inc.)

GENEVA, May 12.—(P)—

It is perhaps a tragic coincidence that today the council of the League of Nations should have damaged and impaired Article XVI of the covenant—an article which was regarded in the past as the nerve of collective resistance to an aggressor—at the very moment that diplomatic information was received from Berlin which revived fear that Adolf Hitler may be inclined to deal drastically with the problem of the Sudeten Germans in Czechoslovakia.

There was no vote—merely a series of declarations by council members.

With the majority of the delegations declaring their nations in favor of freedom to recognize Ethiopia as Italian, the bearded Emperor's cause was lost.

The Negus, a stately figure in funeral black, was too weak from a recent illness to speak himself in the fight for his country.

He sat with his head bent low and his eyes closed as his representative, Ato Lawrence Taezaz, read his statement at morning session.

"If it is true that the Ethiopian people can expect no aid from the League, Ethiopia will remain amidst you as a living symbol of a violated victim," his statement said.

Unsatisfactory Answers.

About six weeks ago, Joseph Paul Boncour, then minister of foreign affairs, pressed Poland, Rumania and Yugoslavia to declare what they intended to do in case the Prague government had to face attack from the German Reich. Unsatisfactory answers were returned by all of them.

Georges Bonnet, Paul Boncour's successor, has renewed the question and he has already been told by Warsaw and even by Bucharest that, were Soviet Russia to march troops to the rescue of Czechoslovakia, they would move eastward and not westward.

The French government is now trying to appease Polish and Rumanian apprehension about Soviet Russia and to wrest from Moscow a promise that only war material would be dispatched in execution of the Russian-Czechoslovak treaty that was signed in May, 1935, a fortnight after the Franco-Russian pact.

The way in which the Polish delegate emphasized national sovereignty and political realism in his declaration before the League council today gives perhaps a fresh clue to what would be his own government's behavior in an international crisis.

Policy of Defense.

Will France and Great Britain prove resolute and strong enough to turn the tide that carries away from them and from their policy of defense of the peace treaty in the wavering international state in central and eastern Europe?

It all depends upon the attitude they will take in the near future toward the Czechoslovak problem.

Following upon the last Franco-British meeting in London, their co-operation can be expressed as follows:

First, were a compromise to be struck by Berlin and Prague as an outcome of British exhortations, the British cabinet would be ready to become the guarantor of it at the same time as France. On that assumption, both the western powers would assume the same kind of juridical obligations in Danubian Europe and they would form a united front there as well as in the western part of the continent.

But the foregoing contingency is most unlikely to occur, as it cannot be pleasing to Germans that France and England should jointly be called upon to regulate their country's relations with her eastern neighbors.

French Intervention.

Second, if Dr. Eduard Benes and his cabinet make extensive concessions to the claims of the Sudeten Germans and nevertheless the negotiations fail to succeed because of Germany's ill will and warlike designs, the British government, though technically free to draw its line of conduct according to circumstances, would feel it must indorse and support French intervention undertaken by virtue of the Franco-Czechoslovak treaty.

Third, supposing that the Prague government does not go to the extreme limits of what can be granted to the Sudeten Germans without the unity and sovereignty of the Czechoslovak state being imperilled, Prime Minister Neville Chamberlain and his colleagues would consider they are fully entitled to conform with the conception he would form of British national interests of the moment.

In short, such is the gist of policy on which Sir Nevile Henderson, British ambassador to Berlin, has been instructed to enlighten the German government. Needless to say, British diplomatic quarters attach the utmost importance to the doings of the Polish and Rumanian governments.

'Enemy' Lands at 2 Coast Points In War Department's Mock Fight

Three Four-Motored Bombers Buck Storm Area and Pick Up Incoming Italian Liner Rex; Test Shows Key Cities Are Vulnerable.

NEW YORK, May 12.—(P)—Three wide-winged army airplanes, the "Flying Fortresses" of the nation's armed power in the air, flew far to sea today at the opening of general headquarters air force war games to demonstrate their ability to navigate accurately over unmapped areas.

Straight east over the Atlantic the four-motored bombers cruised for 650 miles, riding through storm areas which at times were so severe that the big machines dropped hundreds of feet in downwinds. The altimeter of one bomber indicated a descent of 600 feet in 10 seconds. These bombers recently flew to Buenos Aires.

The planes returned, under command of Major Caleb V. Haynes, at 4:30 p. m. (E. S. T.) after a flight of eight hours to find that the fleet of a European power hypothetically had gained a foothold on the American continent right at the start of the most elaborate maneuvers in the history of the GHQ.

Armed with aircraft carriers and a powerful array of other surface vessels which sped toward the American coast intent on simulated invasion of the north Atlantic seaboard, the "enemy" struck first in Maine and then in North Carolina with thousands of infantrymen parachuting to earth. "Damage" at Providence.

Major General Frank M. Andrews, chief of the GHQ, expressed pleasure over the performance of a navigation problem which included picking up the liner Rex, of the Italian line, at a point approximately 500 miles off the American coast, New York-bound. The Rex had been notified beforehand and wirelessly that it enjoyed being spied upon.

In only one instance, at Providence, was the damage more than negligible. If the purpose of the umpires in setting up the problem was to show the feasibility of air attacks, they succeeded well.

Potatoes were introduced in the United States from England 1629.

A new home for the aged with capacity for 200 persons was recently inaugurated in Mexico City.

NEGUS' PLEA FAILS TO SAVE ETHIOPIA

Britain and France Win Right To Recognize Italy's Conquest.

GENEVA, May 12.—(P)—Ailing Halle Selassie, once Conquering Lion of Judah, fought futilely before the League of Nations council today to save Ethiopia from being recognized as Italian.

Great Britain and France won freedom for League states to acknowledge most of the fruits of Italy's 1935-36 war despite the exiled Emperor's dramatic appearance.

There was no vote—merely a series of declarations by council members.

With the majority of the delegations declaring their nations in favor of freedom to recognize Ethiopia as Italian, the bearded Emperor's cause was lost.

Compact Kit Contains Items Necessary to Eye Health and Beauty

MY DAY

WASHINGTON, Wednesday.—I flew down to Washington this morning and sat next to a gentleman who introduced himself as a friend of my brother in Schenectady. He, however, worked in the international department of the General Electric Company and had just returned after 10 years spent in every part of the world—China, Japan, Africa and the last few years in London.

He was quite thrilled because this was his first airplane trip in the United States, though he had flown in every part of the world. He commented on the comfort of the plane and the excellence of the service and remarked that there were only two trips he could remember taking abroad which compared with this one.

After my arrival at the White House, I caught up on a number of interviews and tried on some very remarkable shoes which make standing for hours a pleasure. At noon, I went to visit a charity called "Opportunity House," in a very poor section of Washington. A group of women have been trying to start what might be called a settlement house, because of the need they have found among the children of the District of Columbia. Their funds are so limited that, even though they seem to be rendering some service, it is not what I would call meeting the real needs of that part of the city.

For instance, many of the small children from 3 to 5 years of age, who come there in the morning from 10 to 12, sit down at noon to a lunch of milk and sandwiches. The settlement workers told me that the food they were able to give, often was all the children had during the day. It is quite usual for the children who can obtain milk at home to refuse it because, little as they are, they seem to appreciate they should not take from other children who have nothing at home.

Judging from some of the stories, life is certainly seen under its worst conditions. Two children were deserted by their mother not long ago. Their father was out of work and for a few days they had to be taken care of at "Opportunity House" until their grandmother came and said they could spend the day with her.

One little boy appeared at the door and inquired if they helped people and, when they told him they tried to, he handed them two very weak and thin kittens and said the old tom cat was treating them very unkindly and would they please take them, which they did!

I arrived home at 1 o'clock for a luncheon meeting with the continuing conference of Federal Youth Serving Agencies. They have made great strides since our last meeting in December and have established councils in four new states—Ohio, Indiana, Kentucky and West Virginia. This group shows what co-operation can do, for by meeting once a month they learn what each federal agency has to offer. This information is passed down to the state councils who, in turn, pass it down to the county councils as quickly as they can be organized. This type of co-operation of activities is very valuable in preventing overlapping and in obtaining the maximum benefit from all the work of the agencies concerned.

BRIDGE LITE :: By Harold Sharpsteen

By HAROLD SHARPESTEEN.
BRIDGE PRIMER.

You may never have played contract bridge. If so, you have perhaps not missed much. The time people miss it is when they have learned a lot about it.

ONE BID.

Your opening bid was one diamond, holding 4 1-2 honor tricks and a bidable four-card suit. Your partner made a response of two diamonds. You hold the following cards:

S, A K 7; H, K 6 3; D, A Q 9 6; C, K 7 5.

Your partner's response of two diamonds does not force you to bid again unless you have something additional to show. You have not another takeout. You have enough added strength to continue with diamonds.

But an assist to three diamonds would not require your partner to bid again. The bidding might conceivably stop at three diamonds. Your hand is too strong not to attempt game. You have enough added honor-trick strength for a voluntary jump in no-trump.

With no bidable suit in your partner's hand and your hand so evenly distributed the chances are better to produce nine tricks at no-trump than 11 tricks in diamonds for game.

You jump immediately to three-no-trump.

ONE LEAD.

You are playing against a no-trump contract. Your partner has bid hearts. You hold the following hand:

S, K 5 4 2; H, 2; D, 9 7 4 2; C, 9 6 4.

You are the opening leader. Your opening lead is the deuce of hearts.

When your partner has bid a suit, lead his suit even if you have a singleton in that suit and that singleton is either an honor or a small card. If your heart singleton was the king you would have led the king.

ONE LAW.

A player may correct a misnomer or slip of the tongue without penalty, but this privilege may not be used to cover the correction of a mistake or a change of mind in making a bid.

I know of only one way for a child under 18 years of age to reduce safely in any case, and that is under the constant observation, instruction and treatment of the family physician.

Any adult who has accumulated more than 10 per cent excess baggage in the course of 10 years, more or less, should regard the monstrosity passionately. Remember, it is generally reversible, the process by which the surplus has been piled up, so it is foolish to lose your head or your health trying to boil, pound, squeeze, rub, sweat, stew, bake, burn, shake, dissolve, melt or soak it off.

A fair amount of exercise daily, equivalent for the average sedentary adult, to walking six miles, is helpful in any sound reduction regimen, provided the overweight individual is not forbidden by his or her physician to take exercise, for some special reason. Systematic general exercise of any kind makes one who is too fat feel and look more slender, reduces the girth rate and other measurements, but has little effect on weight. Muscle, it must be remembered, is heavier than fat, although it takes up less room. Thousands of young men who entered training camps during the World War, from office or other sedentary jobs, lost several inches in girth and became distinctly more slender while gaining an average of 12 pounds' weight in a few months of physical training.

A few fat persons who have forgotten any physiology they ever learned still imagine fat can be removed by taking salts or by taking strenuous sweats by one means or another. Any reduction of weight so brought about is inevitably adjusted within 48 hours by the intake of more water—the weight lost represents only the weight of the water.

One excellent reducing exercise I can recommend from theory and experience. The directions are simple: When the dessert is coming on you push yourself back from the table. Now no one is fonder of dessert than I am, if it is sour cherry pie or double chocolate frozen pudding. Yet, if I had to renounce forevermore my pipe, my bowls or my pie or pudding, I'd be in a pretty serious predicament. Seriously, though, it is no great self-denial for a lad or lass who has just stoked in a good square meal to toddle along with out piling another meal right on top of it. I am speaking now of the mature adult who is a bit overweight or inclined to be.

Tiny particles of dust and other foreign matter are constantly entering the eyes and irritating the delicate covering membrane. Prolonged friction causes bloodshot eyes. Many cases of infection may be avoided by regular eye baths.

This beauty specialist has such a bath for use with either eye cup or eye dropper. It is refreshing and pleasant to use. But don't wait until your eyes hurt or feel strained; use the bath as a preventive.

Tissues under the eyes and those of the eyelids are very delicate, and soon lose their natural oil. The least strain shows up in fine lines which rapidly multiply and deepen. This same woman has blended from rare and nourishing oils an eye cream which is so delicate that the skin surrounding the eyes easily assimilates it, and thus the satiny smoothness of this tissue is preserved. The cream should follow the night eye bath and does its best work when left on overnight.

These four aids to eye beauty and comfort are now packaged together in a lovely little compact kit of burnished silver finish, trimmed in blue. It is indispensable for traveling, and makes a grand bridge prize.

Now let me tell you why I am so enthusiastic about this pack.

When next the call comes for cash, look the lady straight in the eye and tell her you are sorry you have none to spare due to the fact that former loans have not been repaid in full.

You must remember that a grafter will continue the racket so long as her efforts meet with success.

Beauty According To You

Be Kind To Your Eyes, and They'll Help You To Look Years Younger

By LILLIAN MAE.

Years ago an eminent beauty specialist, realizing that the eyes—the most expressive and magnetic of the features—are the first to give warning that beauty is on the wane, went to work on a scientific eye treatment by use of which women throughout the world may now keep their eyes young, lines-less and beautiful.

FRIENDLY COUNSEL

By CAROLINE CHATFIELD

Problems of general interest will be discussed by this column. Write to the Constitution, 100 Peachtree Street, N.E., Atlanta, Ga., in confidence. Write Miss Chatfield in care of The Atlanta Constitution.

Dear Miss Chatfield: I guess you will say it is a plain case of self-pity. I am an old maid living with my brother and his wife. She imposes upon me in many ways. I don't want to hurt her feelings nor do I want to be taken for a good thing. My complaint is that she is always telling me that the month is out she manages to borrow most of my money and never pays me in full. I have only amite to live on and can't afford to part with any of it but at the slightest hint that I'm not pleased with everything I am called a grouch. Please give me your ideas.

LOW-IN-MIND.

Answer: Maybe you are developing a martyr complex, which isn't strange but absolutely ruinous to health and happiness. You see once a woman lies down and wallows in self-pity, she loses her spunk and her ambition to get up and help herself and everybody that passes gives her a kick; as for instance your grafting family's calling you a grouch, pot calling kettle black, surely.

Then snap out of it, sister, get up and fight your way back to self-respect and independence. Don't permit the family to impose upon you any further. It would be much better if you moved out, got a job and made a life for yourself quite separate from your brother and his wife. The time you put in nursing an ailing sister-in-law and the money you lose in loans to her could be employed to fine advantage were you on your own.

It is not practical for you to move then stand up right where you are and protect yourself.

When next the call comes for cash, look the lady straight in the eye and tell her you are sorry you have none to spare due to the fact that former loans have not been repaid in full.

You must remember that a grafter will continue the racket so long as her efforts meet with success.

CAROLINE CHATFIELD.

Dear Miss Chatfield: For four years I believed every word my girl told me and then found she'd been lying to me all the time. When I closed in on her she wept, begged me to forgive her and promised she would never deceive me as long as she lived. I caught her again and the second time I told her I was through for good. She seems to be wretched and I certainly am. Now what should I do about it?

TONY.

Answer: Tony, there is such a thing as congenital liar and if your girl is one of them you may make up your mind that the last trump will find her indulging in her favorite pastime.

It's also true that love will inspire her to make a desperate attempt to be honest with the man she loves. Then give her a chance to restore your confidence. It will take time since she's beginning with a fearful handicap.

There Is No Intensity in Ireland---
Just a Brooding Quietness

CASTLEFINN, COUNTY DONEGAL, Ireland.—(By Mail.) Sitting in the sun which streams through a window into an old stone cottage which was old 100 years ago, I can look out across the river and the fields to where the hills climb right up to the sky and make a tumbling line against the thin blue of it.

Not far from the house there is the first of the hedge rows, a hedge of "whins" or furze, all golden yellow like massive hedges of golden bloom. And then there was the glint of the River Finn; there is the hill where the old castle stood, and then the green fields, the hedges of yellow furze and then the climbing green again and the sky.

It is quiet. Ireland always quiet with a brooding quietness. Even where the "troubles" were on, it was quiet. There is never any intensity.

A fire smokes on the hearth. On the hill a farmer follows

DAUBER REIGNS
BETTING CHOICE
FOR PREAKNESS

Fighting Fox, Bull Lea
Turn in Impressive
Trial Runs.

By ORLO ROBERTSON.
BALTIMORE, Md., May 12.—(P)—Although counted out of the three-year-old championship picture after their dismal showings in the Kentucky Derby, Fighting Fox and Bull Lea still are the big question marks in Saturday's running of the $70,000 Preakness at Pimlico.

Both horses failed to run to their best performances in the Derby and that's what worried the experts and railfans alike today as the probable field for the classic was increased to 10 with the addition of Hal Price Headley's Duh.

The Fox, wearing blinkers for the first time, indicated he was fit in his toes when he worked a mile in 1:40 yesterday.

"Maybe blinkers is just what he needs," said Trainer James Fitzsimmons. "Gallant Fox (a full brother) wore them and so did Omaha, another of the same family." They both won the Derby and Preakness.

Frank Kearns, portly trainer of Bull Lea, worked Warren Wright's ace two-year-olds of a mile in 1:29 3-5 this morning.

"I only asked him to really run the last eighth and he did that in 12 1-4 seconds," said Kearns. "Unless he gets another, as he was at the start of the Derby, he'll have no excuse Saturday."

Regardless of the fine trial spins of the Fox and Bull Lea, Dauber, from William Du Pont Jr.'s Fox catcher farm, still remained the favorite as the result of his fast closing second back of Lawrin in the Derby. He may go postward at 4:45 p. m. (eastern standard time) as short as 2 to 1 in the mutuel machines.

If Duh He accompanies Hal Price Headley's fleet Menow to the post, he'll have Charley Kurtsinger in the saddle with Raymond (Sonny) Workman again astride the stable's No. 1 horse.

Anaflame, a filly, will be entered as a running mate for the Fox, but whether she'll start will not be decided until Saturday morning.

A. C. Compton's Sun Egret, Ral

Frank's Hypocrite and Townsend B. Martin's Cravat, all outsiders, complete the probable field. Jack Westrop, left without a mount when illness forced the withdrawal of Stagehand and The Chief, will be up on Cravat.

KLEIN IS LEADING METRO TOURNEY

NEW YORK, May 12.—(P)—Willie Klein, 36-year-old pro from East Williston, N. Y., sliced one stroke off par with a 69 over the tight fairways and bumpy greens of the Fresh Meadow Country Club today to gain a one-stroke, first-round margin over the strongest field the Metropolitan Open golf championship has drawn in years.

Klein shot his round early in the day, and it was still in first place when the afternoon's firing was over.

Closest to him, at par 70, was a threesome including defending Champion Jimmy Hines, U. S. Open Champion Ralph Guldahl, and Horton Smith, the leading putting star from Chicago.

Another shot back, at 71, came Lawson Little, former U. S. and British amateur champion; Frank Moore, like Klein, a local "dark horse," and Walter Kozak, the carefree blond.

Other potential contenders in the starting squad of 104 were scattered all the way from 72 up to 77. Ted Turner, of Clementon, N. J., stood at the former figure; young Ben Hogan, of Texas and White Plains, N. Y., at 73, together with Tony Penna, of Dayton, Ohio; Sam Sneed, of White Sulphur Springs, W. Va., alone at 74; Vic Ghezzi and Paul Runyan at 75; Harry Cooper, slugging Jimmy Thomson, Frank Walsh and amateur Frank Strafaci, at 76, and veterans "Long Jim" Barnes and Willie MacFarlane, together with amateur Dick Chapman, at 77.

Klein's 69 easily might have been a 66. Willie shot six birdies, but also three-putted three holes on the back nine. From time to time he was in trouble only twice, while he dropped stroke-averaging putting range from 1 to 15 feet.

He'll be in trouble only twice, while he dropped stroke-averaging putting range from 1 to 15 feet.

Helen Wili Moody today reached the fifth round of the North London tennis tournament. It was the fourth match Mrs. Moody had won with the loss of only one game.

FIGHT DETAILS ARE COMPLETE

The south's greatest colored fight program is less than a week

away and Promoter Cleve Roby

announces that all details have been completed.

There will be 40 rounds of boxing, featuring a 15-round main event between John Henry Lewis, light-heavyweight champion of the world, and Elmer Ray, young champion of Florida.

Kirby and Miley play in the upper bracket, while Kirby and

Page battle in the lower half for the right to play 36 holes Saturday for the 1938 championship.

Kirby was none too confident today as she noted the trans-

Mississippi and former Texas

champion, but after the sixth hole,

when she was four up, there was little doubt as to her winning.

The Atlanta school girl, after two pars, and one up, began a streak of chipping and putting at three which would beat most any golfer. She laid one six inches from the pin for a birdie and win at three. She followed with another chip dead to the cup at four and was three up.

She went into a sand trap at five on her second but made a fine recovery and dropped a short putt for a par and a half. Dorothy won the sixth with a par after Jameson's drive found the trap, and it was four up for the Atlantan with four straight one-up greens.

DOT LOSES HER FIRST.

Dorothy's second at seven found the trap at the right and after a second attempt failed to clear the hole, she picked up, conceding the

Southern Champion Is
Two Under Par in Steady Round.

BY ROY WHITE.

BIRMINGHAM COUNTRY CLUB, May 12.—Dorothy Kirby, Atlanta, and Mrs. Estelle Lawson Page, N. C., renew their southern woman's championship battle here tomorrow in the semi-final of the twenty-seventh annual tournament. Kirby beat Page, 2-1, last year at East Lake to win her first southern crown.

Kirby, shooting a sub-par, 72, despite a pickup at No. 7, eliminated Betty Jameson, San Antonio, Texas, 3-2, in defense of her southern crown, while Mrs. Page, the national champion, had tough fight beating Mrs. Mark McGarry, St. Petersburg, Fla., 1936 southern titleholder, and a former Florida state champion, 2 up.

Mrs. Dan Chandler, Dallas, Texas, the 1938 and 1937 medalist, sprang the first upset of the tournament with a 2-up victory over Kathryn Hemphill, Greenville, S. C., a member of the Curtis cup team.

GOLDTHWAITE BEATEN.

Marion Miley, the Lexington, Ky., stylist and medalist and western champion, shooting four strokes under par for 16 holes, defeated Mrs. Frank Goldthwaite, Dallas, Texas, former southern winner, 3-2.

Miley and Chandler play in the upper bracket, while Kirby and Page battle in the lower half for the right to play 36 holes Saturday for the 1938 championship.

Kirby was none too confident today as she noted the trans-Mississippi and former Texas champion, but after the sixth hole, when she was four up, there was little doubt as to her winning.

The Atlanta school girl, after two pars, and one up, began a streak of chipping and putting at three which would beat most any golfer. She laid one six inches from the pin for a birdie and win at three. She followed with another chip dead to the cup at four and was three up.

She went into a sand trap at five on her second but made a fine recovery and dropped a short putt for a par and a half. Dorothy won the sixth with a par after Jameson's drive found the trap, and it was four up for the Atlantan with four straight one-up greens.

DOT LOSES HER FIRST.

Dorothy's second at seven found the trap at the right and after a second attempt failed to clear the hole, she picked up, conceding the hole. It was her first loss of the round.

Kirby came right back with a birdie four at eight for a win and halved the ninth, to remain three up at the turn.

Dorothy was three under par except for the pickup, which giving her a six, would have been one under.

A great blast from the sand trap and one putt, gave Jameson the 10th hole with a birdie, but the advantage was lost at the 11th as Dorothy got a birdie three.

Jameson made another fine recovery from a sand trap and got her par at 11 but it was no good against Kirby's birdie three, her fourth of the round.

DROPS 35-FOOT PUTT.

The defending champion dropped a 35-foot putt for another birdie and a win at 12, after half-topping her second shot into the trap.

JACKETS BEAT AUBURN, 5 TO 4; PLAY BULLDOGS

Appleby's Single in Tenth Inning Drives in Winning Run.

By TOM MCRAE.

Harry Appleby's single in the tenth inning scored Ed Jones to give Georgia Tech a 5-to-4 victory over Auburn in the final game of the series. The Jackets won three out of four from the Plainsmen.

It was a heartbreaker for Cooper Sellers, who relieved Andrews in the first and held Tech to three hits and no earned runs in 9 1-3 innings.

Auburn scored in the first. Baze more singled and was sacrificed down by Bennett. Morgan's single to left scored Baze more. Tech came back in their half of the inning with two runs. Page singled and went to second when Baze more fumbled the drive. Appleby singled, Page pulling up at third. Appleby stole second. Ebdon walked, filling the bases. Gibson lofted to right field, Page scoring after the catch and Appleby going to third. Appleby and Ebdon tried a double steal but Appleby was out at the plate. Jordan doubled to left, scoring Ebdon.

Auburn forged ahead in the third with two runs. Andrews was safe on Smith's error. Baze more singled. Bennett rolled to the pitcher, who cut off the runner going to third. Sellers singled, filling the bases. Morgan was hit by a pitched ball, forcing in Baze more. Bennett scored on a fielder's choice.

The Plainsmen got their last run in the sixth on Kenmore's single, Hayes' sacrifice, and Grisham's single.

Tech got two in the eighth to knot the count. Smith and Ector got on errors, one a wild throw which allowed the runners to reach second and third. Jones scored with a single.

Tech's winning tally came in the tenth with two out. Jones walked and Page's easy fly was dropped by Andrews. He held up at third and Page at second. Then Appleby singled to drive in the winning run.

Tech plays the University of Georgia in Athens today at 4 o'clock. Bobby Dodd said Neal Cates will pitch for Tech. The team plays on the Rose Bowl field Saturday.

INSTALLMENT XXXIII.

He went forward with the track and came out upon the road. There was a car coming from the direction of Railing. Dr. Hammond, at the wheel, saw a man emerge from the old cart track and, recognizing Mr. Brewster, tried hard on his brakes and came sliding up beside him. Mr. Brewster turned, and the car stopped.

Dr. Hammond opened the door, leaned out of it, and said, "Hello! Your name's Brewster, isn't it?"

"Mr. Brewster in his proudest manner admitted it.

Dr. Hammond leaned a little farther out, his eyes more than ever like those of a terrier—a terrier who sees a rat. The bright spark in them alarmed Mr. Brewster. This man was the police surgeon. He slid a nervous hand into his pocket.

Dr. Hammond said in his sharp, barking voice, "Met you at Cole Lester yesterday, didn't I?"

"I believe so—if you can call it meeting."

"You came in, and I went out. That's how it was, wasn't it? But I never forgot a face."

"A very useful faculty," said Mr. Brewster.

"Sometimes," Jim Hammond grinned. "Can I give you a lift, Mr. Brewster?"

"No, thanks. I have come out for some exercise."

"Glutton for exercise, aren't you? Do you often take it at 3 in the morning?"

"I really don't—" Mr. Brewster's hand was coming out of his pocket.

"I saw you getting over the gate at Hangman's Corner last night. I think the pond up there is about due for a clean out. Hangman's Pond they call it. Nasty name. Nasty insanitary pond. I'm going to recommend its being cleaned out, Mr. Brewster—"

The name broke off a little short, because Mr. Brewster's hand had come out level with Dr. Hammond's eyes and it held a small automatic pistol.

"Put your hands up and keep them up!" said Mr. Brewster sharply. "Sit right back—I'm going to shut the door!" He did so, opened the rear door with his left hand, and got in.

Dr. Hammond felt the muzzle of the pistol cold against the back of his neck and cursed aloud.

"Be quiet!" said Mr. Brewster. "You can put your hands down now. I want you to start the car and drive down that field track—the one I came out of just now."

With his hands on the wheel and the engine purring, Dr. Hammond said in a tone of concentrated fury. "What damn fool game is this?"

"Drive along the track!" commanded Mr. Brewster.

Dr. Hammond gritted his teeth and did as he was told. What a fool he had been!

"The fellow intended to kill him. A double murderer, already, he couldn't afford to let him live. Play for time, that was the only thing. Stare it off and watch for the odd, improbable chance. He thought about Judith his wife and his heart was full of a bitter rage."

"Stop here!" said Mr. Brewster in that new sharp voice.

They were round a bend and out of sight of the road. The car stopped, and in a flash the pistol which had been pressed against the back of Dr. Hammond's neck was leveled at his temple. It was still in Mr. Brewster's hand, but Mr. Brewster was now standing outside the car looking in upon the driver's seat. Jim Hammond's moment had come and gone. He ought to have ducked and jumped for it at the moment the pistol moved, but the whole thing had been so unbelievably quick. He had had his chance and lost it.

"Hands up!" said Brewster.

"And get out! I'm a dead shot, Hammond, so no tricks. I'd rather shoot you than not, because it would be safer for me, but I'll give you a chance if you do what you're told. Walk along the track in front of me and don't let your hands down!"

Jim Hammond thought, "He can't let me go. Why doesn't he shoot and get it over?" And the answer, "He'll drop me at the edge of the quarry—save him the trouble of dragging me there. No, not me, the body—Jim Hammond's body."

The cart track ran within twenty yards of the quarry's edge. When they reached this point Mr. Brewster gave another order.

"Turn right! Leave the track and go towards the quarry!"

It was rough, broken ground.

Dr. Hammond had many thoughts.

None of them promised very much. He thought of a sudden dodging swerve and a quick tackle.

But he had to turn—he had to turn—and the pistol was no more than a yard away. The quarry's edge was no more than a yard away.

"I really don't—" Mr. Brewster's hand was coming out of his pocket.

"I saw you getting over the gate at Hangman's Corner last night. I think the pond up there is about

Dr. Hammond felt the muzzle of the pistol cold against the back of his neck and cursed aloud.

"Be quiet!" said Mr. Brewster. "You can put your hands down now. I want you to start the car and drive down that field track—the one I came out of just now."

With his hands on the wheel and the engine purring, Dr. Hammond said in a tone of concentrated fury. "What damn fool game is this?"

"Drive along the track!" commanded Mr. Brewster.

Dr. Hammond gritted his teeth and did as he was told. What a fool he had been!

"The fellow intended to kill him. A double murderer, already, he couldn't afford to let him live. Play for time, that was the only thing. Stare it off and watch for the odd, improbable chance. He thought about Judith his wife and his heart was full of a bitter rage."

"Stop here!" said Mr. Brewster in that new sharp voice.

They were round a bend and out of sight of the road. The car stopped, and in a flash the pistol which had been pressed against the back of Dr. Hammond's neck was leveled at his temple. It was still in Mr. Brewster's hand, but Mr. Brewster was now standing outside the car looking in upon the driver's seat. Jim Hammond's moment had come and gone. He ought to have ducked and jumped for it at the moment the pistol moved, but the whole thing had been so unbelievably quick. He had had his chance and lost it.

"Hands up!" said Brewster.

"And get out! I'm a dead shot, Hammond, so no tricks. I'd rather shoot you than not, because it would be safer for me, but I'll give you a chance if you do what you're told. Walk along the track in front of me and don't let your hands down!"

Jim Hammond thought, "He can't let me go. Why doesn't he shoot and get it over?" And the answer, "He'll drop me at the edge of the quarry—save him the trouble of dragging me there. No, not me, the body—Jim Hammond's body."

The cart track ran within twenty yards of the quarry's edge. When they reached this point Mr. Brewster gave another order.

"Turn right! Leave the track and go towards the quarry!"

It was rough, broken ground.

Dr. Hammond had many thoughts.

None of them promised very much. He thought of a sudden dodging swerve and a quick tackle.

But he had to turn—he had to turn—and the pistol was no more than a yard away. The quarry's edge was no more than a yard away.

"I really don't—" Mr. Brewster's hand was coming out of his pocket.

"I saw you getting over the gate at Hangman's Corner last night. I think the pond up there is about due for a clean out. Hangman's Pond they call it. Nasty name. Nasty insanitary pond. I'm going to recommend its being cleaned out, Mr. Brewster—"

The name broke off a little short, because Mr. Brewster's hand had come out level with Dr. Hammond's eyes and it held a small automatic pistol.

"Put your hands up and keep them up!" said Mr. Brewster sharply. "Sit right back—I'm going to shut the door!" He did so, opened the rear door with his left hand, and got in.

Dr. Hammond felt the muzzle of the pistol cold against the back of his neck and cursed aloud.

"Be quiet!" said Mr. Brewster. "

Second Oglethorpe Signature Turns Up

Mrs. Douglas Woodward, of Birmingham, Finds Relic in Decatur Home.

By YOLANDE GWIN.

The existence of the unknown signature of General James Edward Oglethorpe was found in a Decatur home yesterday. This is the second Oglethorpe signature recently discovered.

Mrs. Douglas Woodward, of Birmingham, visiting in the family home in Decatur, produced the second signature, written in 1742, which it is believed, overshadows in historical importance and value the one which was presented to the State Department of Archives and History Wednesday by members of the Daughters of the Colonial Women in the State of Georgia.

The latter signature was bought from a dealer in Philadelphia and, according to Mrs. J. E. Hays, director of the Archives Department, had been the object of a six-month search throughout the United States and England.

The one discovered yesterday was practically in Mrs. Hays' "front yard" but was unknown until Mrs. Woodward announced her family's ownership of the name. General Oglethorpe signed a deed given to her great-great-grandfather, Captain John Millidge, whose son, John, became Governor of Georgia. The date on the deed is 1742, which makes it 36 years older than the one which was presented to the state archives department. The latter is a small receipt of money paid Oglethorpe in 1778 after he had returned to England.

Yesterday, Mrs. Woodward held the deed upon which the name is signed, and said:

"There are others in the family besides myself. I cannot speak for all of them, but for myself I would not be interested in selling the Oglethorpe signature. When I read yesterday that Mrs. Hays had received the one she had received was the only one known in the state, I thought the time had come to show ours to the public."

Enclosed in an oak frame, the deed, written in ink on paper now yellow with age, reminds the beholder of historical and military events of long ago. The letterhead reads: "James Oglethorpe, Esq., General and Commander-in-Chief of His Majesty's Forces in South Carolina and Georgia," while the text reads:

"To Captain John Millidge: By virtue of the power and authority to me granted by His Majesty, I do hereby constitute and appoint you the said John Millidge to be Quartermaster of the Troops of Rangers. You are therefore diligently to discharge the duty of quartermaster by duly exercising and well disciplining the men belonging to the said Troop, who are here commanded to obey you as their quartermaster, and you are to observe and follow such orders and directions as you shall from time to time receive according to the rules and discipline of War. Given under my hand and seal at Frederica in Georgia this twenty-ninth day of March anno domini 1742 and in the fifteenth year of His Majesty's reign."

"JAMES OGLETHORPE."

Frederica is on St. Simon's island, near Brunswick.

LEWIS TELLS LABOR TENANCY IN GEORGIA TO KEEP WAGES UP TERMED 'ALARMING'

Organized Groups Will Stand for No Reductions, CIO Head Says.

ATLANTIC CITY, N. J., May 12.—(P)—John L. Lewis, stormy leader of the CIO, pounded his fist before the Amalgamated Clothing Workers today and shouted organized labor would stand for no reductions in wages.

Placing the nation's unemployed at 13,000,000, Lewis called upon employers to "practice the right to work." He declared the unemployed "not for long this time" would be "willing to watch their children die."

"Instead of letting wages be reduced," he thundered, "we shall force wages higher and signed until the workers of this country can buy the food, the clothing and the other things that are produced by the very machinery that has forced men out of work."

Lee's measure, as asserted, widespread unionization of workers was the only thing that prevented the present recession from becoming "a wild panic" and announced that on the first day this country showed signs of economic recovery his group would "spring into action with an organization drive such as this country never saw before."

"We struck three years ago," he said, "because we knew we had to strike when jobs were not at such high premium. . . . We had only 1,000,000 workers to back us then, but next time we will have 4,000,000 workers back of us, and by the time the next depression rolls around the working people will do something about it."

Oklahoman Asks Farm Purchase Aid in Senate Speech.

WASHINGTON, May 12.—(P)—The south's tenant farmers—who in Georgia till 65.5 per cent of all farms—would be aided in purchasing their own land under a bill outlined to the senate today by Senator Lee, Democrat, Oklahoma.

Lee's measure, as amended to the Bankhead—Jones act, would authorize long term, low-interest loans on farms which the government would encourage tenants to buy from absentee owners.

In what he termed "alarming figures," Lee told the senate Georgia led all southern states in farm tenancy. He added the percentage in Arkansas was 60; in Louisiana 61.2, and in Texas 57.1. He said the average in the south was 53.5 per cent.

He compared southern tenancy with that for the United States as a whole, which he asserted was 42.1 per cent.

The bill would provide for appointment of a county committee which would receive listings of all farms which owners desired to sell to tenants. Applications from tenants likewise would be filed with the committee. After approval, the would-be owner would have the privilege of choosing a farm on which the government would insure a mortgage. No down payment would be required, but the government would retain a lien on the crops until 10 per cent of the purchase price was paid. Interest would be 3 per cent, and the payment period 25 years.

BAN WAR PROFITS, WOMEN ARE URGED

Veteran Says Move Will Aid Peace.

KANSAS CITY, May 12.—(P)—The 2,000,000 members of the General Federation of Women's Clubs were asked tonight by a war veteran to help stop future wars by taking the huge profits away from the greedy and giving them to the government.

"Eliminate profiteering with a definite tax schedule that will convey to the federal government all gains over and above a normal profit," urged Scott P. Squires, of Oklahoma City, commander-in-chief of the Veterans of Foreign Wars.

"We believe just the threat of this law will keep America at peace. If we find ourselves forced to go to war, this measure will enable us to 'pay-as-we-fight.'

HUGE TEXTILE ORDER MAY BUOY INDUSTRY

WASHINGTON, May 12.—(P)—The Works Progress Administration's decision to purchase 75,500,000 yards of textiles immediately, officials said today, was inspired by the hope that the orders would create jobs in textile plants while private business was slack.

WPA placed its first large orders last month, when requirements of its 9,000 sewing centers were set at 35,000,000 yards. Requirements for 15,500,000 yards already have been handled by the procurement division of the treasury and others, for approximately 60,000,000 yards, will be forwarded to the procurement division early next week.

CHURCHMEN COMPLETE WORLD CONSTITUTION

UTRECHT, The Netherlands, May 12.—(P)—A conference of leading churchmen from 20 countries late tonight completed writing a proposed constitution for a world council of churches in which all Protestants would be invited to join.

After three days of executive sessions the delegates finished work on the draft which is to be considered for final approval at a brief meeting tomorrow. The constitution would be submitted to churches for their approval.

UNIFICATION MEET DATE IS SCHEDULED

Committee To Name Place; Three Cities Contending.

DALLAS, May 12.—(P)—Bishop John M. Moore, chairman of the commission of unification of the Methodist Episcopal Church, South, announced today the uniting conference, which will join 8,000,000 American Methodists, will be held April 26, 1939.

Where this meeting will be held will be decided by a joint committee consisting of five members each from the three branches of Methodism. St. Louis is a strong contender and Cincinnati and Baltimore have been mentioned.

2 DIE IN GUN DUEL

Tiger Tail' Voters Succeed in Nominating Officers.

DYERSBURG, Tenn., May 12.—(P)—Guns blazed and fists flew at the "Tiger Tail" voting precinct today as residents of Dyer county nominated a sheriff and other officers in the most spirited election in years. Two men died pistol wounds. A third man, a bystander, was slightly injured. Another was injured in a fist fight. Luther Hinson, 52-year-old former deputy sheriff, died almost instantly, and James Riggins, with whom he exchanged shots, died several hours later in a hospital here of a bullet wound in the head.
